

Cookie statement

Our website makes use of technologies that increase its ease of use and help us ensure that the website is as much in line with your needs as possible. Amongst these technologies are cookies. These are used by us and, for example, advertisers in order to be able to reach you. As we are committed to safeguarding your privacy, we would like to explain how we use cookies, why we do so and which cookies we use.

Cookies are small text files that are stored on the device with which you visit a website. They store information about your visit to this website. This could be, for example, a language choice or other settings. Our website stores session cookies and persistent cookies. Session cookies allow us to view how you visit our website and persistent cookies allow us to recognise you as a returning visitor. The use of cookies is safe; it is not possible to retrieve personal information from cookies.

We make use of various types of cookies:

Functional cookies

Functional cookies ensure the proper functioning of our website. For example:

Optimal display of video content

Reading your browser settings in order to be able to display our website optimally

Distributing the load on the website evenly so that it remains available

Enabling the use of contact forms

Analytical cookies

Analytical cookies help us determine which information is considered most interesting by our visitors. This information is used to draw up statistics that provide us insight into the ease of use of our website. These statistics as well as other reports are not traced back to persons. Examples of the statistics recorded are:

Analysing the number of visitors on our website

Determining from which web page you have entered our website

Keeping track of the visit duration and the time at which you visit our website

Analysing the order in which you visit the pages on our website

Optimising our website

Social media cookies

Social media cookies allow you to share an article or other file by clicking on the social media buttons. For more information about the cookies stored by social media parties and the information collected by these cookies, please refer to the statements on their websites.

Other

Because of the way the internet works, it is possible that cookies are stored on our website beyond our control and knowledge.

If you want to prevent our website from storing cookies on your computer, you can do so via your browser settings. More information on disabling cookies can be found on the website

Waarschuwingsdienst.nl of the Dutch Ministry of Security and Justice. If you have indicated that you do not wish to accept the cookies used by this website, a no-follow cookie will be stored on the device you are visiting this website with. The sole purpose of this no-follow cookie is to register your choice of not accepting the cookies used by this website.